

New Project Briefing Sheet

Starting a new project may seem like a daunting task at first. However, both ENACTUS LSE and ENACTUS UK provide the necessary support in the development and implementation of projects. This briefing sheet acts as a guide to ensure that the basic foundations for your project are in place.

Step 1: Research

This stage of the project is mostly down to you. You will need to do some preliminary research in order to aid you in completing the next step of the briefing. Some preliminary questions are attached in the document titled 'Judging Criterion' which may assist you in your research.

Step 2: Submit your stage 1 project planning template

The project planning template acts as a guide to help both ENACTUS LSE and you so that your project outline can be accurately seen. With this template, you will be able to see which parts of your project are strong, and which require more research/development.

Step 3: Book an appointment with us

Once you have sent us your project planning template, we will get in touch and arrange meetings with you to run through your project and to identify the areas in which we are able to offer our support.

Step 4: Stage 2 project planning template and project review

This stage will involve a more in depth discussion of your project focusing on aspects such as team recruitment, budget and action plans for the project. Some projects will be selected to attend a 'Project Den' in November where you will present your project in front of ENACTUS UK alumni mentors.

Please feel free to contact Jamie Karia (Managing Director) if you have any further questions:
j.karia@lse.ac.uk